Rooming House By-Law

Threat by City Panics Owners

Sudden Move Demands Sinks in Every Room

Owners and tenants of Victoria housekeeping rooms were rising in dismay and anger last night over sudden threatened enforcement of a requirement that each housekeeping room have a sink and running hot and cold water.

Ald. J. Donald Smith, who brought the situation to attention of council, said many owners were facing actual hardship. He added last night that he had been informed the owners were organizing protest meetings and getting up a petition.

City council asked the Victoria-Esquamalt Union Board of Health for a report on the situation, but took no other immediate action.

Ald. Smith brought the matter to council's attention as "quite urgent." He said the sanitary inspector's office had recently sent out 400 notices that sinks must be placed in all housekeeping rooms in the city, giving the owners six months to comply.

This, he said, was in keeping with a by-law passed in 1949, but was creating a hardship.

He cited the case of one rooming-house owner who had just installed an automatic oil furnace and now must find $1,000 for the installation of sinks.

"I wonder," he said, "if we can ask the health department to reconsider, perhaps to give them two years, or to require that the installations must be completed before the rooming houses can be sold?"

"Why is it so important after all these years?" Mayor Percy Scurrah wanted to know. "If it was necessary in 1949, why has it not been enforced until 1956?"

Chief Sanitary Inspector Elwood Gropp said last night that enforcement had not been practicable until the city's new zoning by-law was passed this year, because of inability of rooming house operators to obtain building permits for the installation of sinks under the old zoning by-law.

The by-law requiring the installation of the sinks, Mr. Gropp said, was "very carefully considered" by the health authorities and council in 1949.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson suggested asking the health board for a report, and council adopted her motion.

"We have no power to ask the sanitary inspector to lay off," Mayor Scurrah observed.

"But we can amend the by-law and eliminate that section," Ald. Smith suggested.

First Eyewitness Story

Russian Tank Slaughters Peaceful Demonstrators

Flag-Waving Hungarians Massacred in Cold Blood

By ENDE MARTON

BUDAPEST (AP)—A Russian tank opened fire Thursday on a few thousand peaceful demonstrators, transforming Budapest's Parliament Square into a slaughterhouse.

The demonstrators' only weapons were Hungarian flags.

At 10 a.m. 2,000 men and women, waving flags and shouting "this is a peaceful demonstration" had just passed in front of the United States legation toward the nearby Parliament Building.

They greeted the American flag, waving from the legation building, with beaming faces. Marchers waved their hats and some shouted:

"Why don't you help us?"

Then an amazing thing happened. Two huge Russian tanks and an armored car drove up, packed with young Hungarians fraternizing with the Russian soldiers. All were smiling uneasily.

Other tanks and also a number of Russian guns were mounted at various corners of the huge gothic Parliament Building.

SLOGANS SHOUTED

Demonstrators sent a three-member delegation into the building, which houses the prime ministry.

While waiting the return of their delegation, the crowd shouted slogans such as "Down with Geroe" and "Release our prisoners." (Geroe Geroe was ousted Thursday as first secretary of the Communist party in Hungary.)

The Russians remained friendly but kept away from the crowd and prevented demonstrators from reaching a gate leading to the prime ministry.

I took cover in a doorway and looking out saw a tank firing wildly.

Then three armored cars drove up, packed with Russian soldiers, but they aimed their guns toward the sky before they fired.

How many became the victims of the shooting in Parliament Square could not be ascertained. I saw the body of a woman lying under the arcade of the ministry of agriculture, opposite the Parliament Building, and three other bodies lying on a streetcar track.

BODIES REMOVED

When I revisited the scene in the afternoon the bodies had been taken away. One eyewitness said there were 200 to 300 dead on the square but figures tend to be exaggerated in critical times.

The stories demonstrators tell are naturally controversial. The fact is that many Hungarians arrived atop Russian tanks and armored cars. They say the Russian soldiers assured them that they had no intention to keep fighting the people and had received orders to return to their bases. Others said it all was a fake.

I could not see a single Hungarian soldier, neither army nor security police. At least in that area all the work was done by Russian troops.

I cannot know what the political sentiments of the crowd at the Parliament Building were but none had arms.

As to who is in over-all command of the rebels, the answer is that nobody seems to be. That is the unanimous belief of the few Westerners, diplomats and reporters who toured the city on both days of what has to be termed a war.

Rebels Gain Strength

VIENNA (UP)—Resurgent rebels, jolted by tanks and infantry of the Hungarian army, proclaimed a revolutionary government in the South of Hungary today after seizing control of large sections of the East.

Radio Pecs, in the south, said a "revolutionary council of the province of Baranya" was directing an organized campaign against loyalist army troops.

The rebel-held Radio Miskolc in the east last night broadcast demands for "immediate elimination" of Stalinists. Rudolf Földvari, Communist Party secretary of the eastern province of Borsod, declared later that Premier Imre Nagy "has accepted our demands."

Nagy answered Radio Miskolc demands with the announcement that he soon will form a new government "of the people's front" which will deal with the country's problems.

Woman Bilks Aged

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Two elderly men Thursday told police that a "very attractive" woman had walked up to them, frisked them and neatly relieved them of their wallets.

D. G. Edwards, in his 60's, said a dark-haired woman got out of a car driven by a man, passed her hands over him and mumbled something about "taking care of the old, the sick and the crippled."

When he recovered his composure, Edwards found he had been robbed of his wallet containing $7.

Ed Woodard, 84, told officers a woman had come to his home posing as a social worker. He said she pretended to give him a physical examination and then left to "get some forms." That is the last he saw of her or his wallet, containing $18.

'This Would Throw Us Out on Street'

Singapore Violence Flares

SINGAPORE (BUP)—Chinese mobs have attacked police in Singapore in what is feared to be a Communist drive to win control of the British outpost. Police fired at the crowds.

The mobs rampaged through the city and its suburbs, seeking out and assaulting European and defiantly charging police patrols.

The outbreak arose from official attempts to end a pro-Communist student strike.

UK TROOPS READY
British troops prepared to intervene with an armored-car force.

A rigid curfew was imposed on the colony at 12.30 a.m. but was lifted a few hours later. It may be reimposed tonight. Assemblies of 10 or more persons have been banned and schools were ordered closed today.

Riot casualties mounted steadily in the early morning hours. Police said 50 persons were injured, nine Europeans and 15 were taken to hospitals.

Twenty rioters were arrested. SCHOOLS SUBROUNDED

The riots began Tuesday night when police surrounded two high schools occupied by 2,500 Communist-led Chinese students on a stay-in strike. Crowds attacked the police with stones and bottles. The Singapore government asked British troops to stand by.

Premier's Widow Dies in East

OTTAWA (CP)—Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Mary G. MacLean, widow of Dr. John D. MacLean, former premier of British Columbia. She died Wednesday following a short illness.

More than 10,000 tenants would be forced into the streets by enforcement of the sink and bathroom requirements of the city's Regulation of Dwellings By-law, the Victoria branch of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association asserted last night.

A well-attended meeting, according to vice-president Herbert Dawson, passed this resolution unanimously:

"Whereas City Hall by-law No. 3459 would force over 10,000 pensioners, DVA- or old-age, and tenants into the streets of Victoria in the dead of winter by forcing owners of rooming houses to install more bathrooms, showers and sinks, and whereas the landlords would be forced to raise rents that are already high enough, and said landlords of rooming houses are not anxious to have empty rooms or apartments and cannot afford to install surplus bathrooms, etc., which will remain unoccupied 50 minutes out of the hour;

"And whereas there are already a large number of rooms vacant in the city so it is impossible to raise rents;

"Therefore we the undersigned being owners or tenants of said apartments or rooms protest very strongly against By-law No. 3459, cited as Regulation of Dwellings By-law, 1949."

Mr. Dawson explained that the by-law, in addition to requiring a sink in every housekeeping room, requires a bathroom for every three families, with a single person being counted as a family.

Train Wipes Out Eight Boys, Girls

SIGOURNEY, Iowa (UP)—A train smashed into a family car at an almost blind rural crossing yesterday and battered eight little brothers and sisters to death.

Their mother, Mrs. Ruth Hammes, 38, was the only survivor of the crash which wiped out every one of her children, including two sets of twins, a few minutes after she set out to drive the older youngsters to school.

Mrs. Hammes was reported in fair condition. Her husband, Richard, who had waved goodbye to his children minutes before they died, stood over their bodies after the tragedy and was unable to say a word.

The dead children were Donald and Ronald, 9-year-old twins; Karen, 8; Linda, 7; Gary, 6; Rosemary, 3; and 18-month-old twins, Ricky and Vicky.

BODIES SCATTERED

Their bodies were scattered along 684 feet of Rock Island line tracks. The car was bent in two under the diesel engine, its top almost torn off.

Ironically, Mrs. Hammes had been driving the same route to school every day for several years, and the train was the only regular train on the route. It makes the 114-mile run each way on alternate days, passing the crossing at about the same time.

Mrs. Hammes told police from her hospital bed that she instinctively applied the brakes when one of the boys in the car shouted "Look out for the train."

"If she had not applied the brakes, it is our opinion she would have gotten on through," Iowa highway patrol Sgt. C. G. Cole said.

Glaciers Pose Menace

Controversial B.C. Road May Never Be Finished

Doubt whether the controversial Stewart-Cassiar road will ever be completed was expressed yesterday by Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

He said latest engineers' reports showed that it might be impossible to force the road through to the southern terminal of Stewart as was originally planned.

Construction of the mining access road through the northern section was easy going, said the minister.

CUT IT OFF

But glaciers just outside Stewart threaten to cut off the road and make its completion impossible, he said.

Mr. Kiernan, who only recently took over the running of the provincial mines department on a full-time basis, said it may be necessary to make Hazelton the southern terminal of the important northern road. The Stewart-Cassiar road formed the centre of controversy at the last session of the legislature when the opposition charged former mines minister Robert Sommers with patronage over construction of the road.

At that time it was alleged Mr. Sommers awarded the contract for the construction of the road to two personal friends and that the actual construction was marked by poor workmanship.

The government called a halt to work this year and sent in two survey crews to look for the best route. Their reports inspired the latest government opinions.

Socialized Medicine 'Inevitable' in Canada

VANCOUVER (BUP)—A British Conservative member of parliament and secretary of the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain said in Vancouver last night that Canada would have to move into socialized medicine "sooner or later."

Sir Hugh Linstead, who will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at the University of British Columbia today, said: "So long as a country is prosperous it will get by without welfare schemes."

"But," he added, "When you get a recession such as we had in the '30s any government would be compelled to put a floor under every body with a social security scheme.

"Sooner or later Canada will have to move into the health service field and your druggists will have to decide now on what they will do about it within the next 20 years or so.

"I talked with Health Minister Paul Martin in Ottawa and he made it clear that nothing more than a regional scheme should be expected," said Sir Hugh. "Plans affecting the family doctor and pharmacists seem to be in the far future."

Concerning Britain's national health scheme, he said the man in the street is "well satisfied with it." Pharmacists are "quite satisfied and much more prosperous."

Doctors are "somewhat disgruntled," Sir Hugh stated. "They want more money, complain about the amount of clerical work and say the attitude of the patient toward them has changed.

"The last is something they could change if they had individual guts and personality to establish a correct relationship," he went on.

Consultants are disgruntled, he said. They must now work through hospitals and opportunities are fewer.

Queen of Ballet Meets the Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—A crowd of nearly 2,000 cheered the Queen when she arrived at the Royal Opera House Thursday night to see the Moscow Bolshoi Company's performance of Giselle, with prima ballerina Gaïne Ulanova dancing in her greatest role.

The Bolshoi ballet, appearing outside Russia for the first time in 200 years, is in the last days of a three-week season here.

After the performance Ulanova and seven other dancers were presented to the Queen.

Doctors Disgruntled

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

WHAT a wonderful feeling it is for the ordinary Western man to see Russia squirming for a change.

Yesterday, the West was in a corner. We were the villain. If we fought, the crowd jeered us as a bully. If we ran away, they jeered us as a coward. Whatever we did in the Suez bout, we were wrong from the beginning.

Now it is Russia's turn. If Russia stamps on Poland, she brands herself an aggressor to the outside world. If she lets Poland go, she proclaims her weakness.

If she crushes the revolt of Hungary, she declares to the world that Hungary is a province of Russia. If she lets the Magyars have their way, she invites other slaves to rebel.

So here we are at last, watching over the ropes and cheering.

Whichever happens, we win.

Neutral millions are observing the contest from the cheap seats. They always cheer for the underdog. And now the underdog, with plain justice on his side, is making a gallant fight.

As much as we would like to pelt the bad man with bottles and tomatoes, we dare not. It would begin a riot.

But we can cheer. And such a loud cheer may burst from the millions of little people all over the world that the bully retires to his corner, stunned and bewildered.

At any rate, this is the decisive round of the fight. The other side won China. Germany was a draw. Korea was a draw. This is our round, and the other side is bleeding severely.

There is really no referee to stop the fight. But maybe it will stop of its own accord by mutual agreement, and begin again under new rules.

Garden Notes

Clubroot Cure Long, Drastic

By H. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One plant disease which has plagued gardeners for over 150 years is clubroot, also known as clubfoot, and Anbury's disease. It is with us today, not because it cannot be controlled, but because effective measures are seldom applied rigorously enough.

The disease attacks all members of the cabbage family, which includes cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, turnips, radishes, candytuft, wallflowers, stocks, and a whole host of weeds of the mustard type. It can be recognized easily by the swollen and distorted roots of infected plants, which symptoms give rise to its common name, clubroot.

FUNGUS GROWTH

The cause is a fungus growth—actually a slime mould—which lives in the soil. When a susceptible member of the cabbage family is planted in such infected soil, spores of the mould invade the roots. Once safely within the tissues of the host plant, these spores multiply terrifically, causing the characteristic distortion and "clubbing" of the roots.

Eventually the roots turn into a slimy mass, and mature disease spores are released into the soil where they await their next victim. One single diseased plant produces millions of spores which can be carried on tools, feet, or even on the feet of birds, to infect new ground.

MANY LETTERS

So widespread is this destructive disease that almost every mail brings me letters from readers who have been compelled to give up growing cabbages, cauliflowers and sprouts on their land.

Clubroot can be cleaned up, but its control demands meticulous and concerted effort. The first step is the rigorous enforcement of garden hygiene, lifting and burning every infected plant, without exception, before it reaches the slime stage where spores are released to the soil.

'Missing' Men Reach U.K.

Tiny Craft Spans Ocean

PLYMOUTH, England (UPI)—A 25-foot yacht built in a Toronto backyard, which left Nova Scotia nearly a year ago to sail the Atlantic, reached Cornwall, England, last night.

On board were two men, both married, whose wives were awaiting them after they had been given up for lost nearly two months ago.

The two men were skipper Bert Smith of Toronto and Alan Battersby. Ten days ago they were found by a Greek steamer 420 miles southwest of Land's End. The captain of the Greek steamer offered them a lift to Amsterdam but they refused saying their destination was England. He provided them with a month's provisions and water.

Atlantic shipping and aircraft had been asked to look out for the tiny craft. Then Lloyds of London put out an alert saying: "Look out for the 26-foot yacht Orenda with two men on board believed to be in distress."

Four hours later the remote lookout station at Land's End, on the tip of England, reported a yacht, its mainmast lying across its deck and with a jury-rig mast astern and a man steering with an oar as a rudder.

Two hours later and lower down the Cornish coast came a message from the coastguard that they had identified the yacht as the Orenda. The coastguard said they had signalled the yacht and had a reply that they were safe and sound and making for Plymouth.

Meanwhile at Toronto the mother of one of two men who have completed an Atlantic crossing in their yacht Orenda, sighed with relief when told of the successful end of the journey.

Mrs. Mae Smith of Toronto, mother of Bertram Smith, 32, said her son and Al Battersby, 29, had "planned to sail across in 36 to 40 days but didn't plan on running into any bad storms."

The two men were expected to arrive at Dartmouth, England, today after reaching the Cornwall coast last night. They had sailed from Sydney, N.S., Sept. 1.

The two men hoped to be the first to sail across the Atlantic in a boat less than 30 feet. The Orenda is 26 feet. Smith built the Orenda in his Toronto backyard before leaving.

The two men planned to sail the Orenda to England before cold weather came and sail it back again to Canada next summer.

No Courage or Time For Licensing—Smith

Ald. J. Donald Smith protested heatedly in city council yesterday that aldermen "haven't had the courage or perhaps on the other hand haven't had the time or interest" to deal with inequalities in city business licensing.

The alderman, advocate of a large-scale revision of trades licences, hit particularly at finance committee, which, he asserted, hadn't made the report on trades licences that council had asked it to make within a 60-day period.

Ald. W. F. Pinfold, finance committee chairman, argued that the committee had done what it could and that a resolution approved by council and taken to the Union of B.C. Municipalities, calling for a uniform B.C. system of trades licensing or business taxing, had been in effect its report.

In the end, council asked Mayor Percy Scurrell to appoint a special committee—"in view of the finance chairman's attitude," Ald. Smith said—to report within 30 days on what the city can do to make trades licences more equitable.

$2,000,000 LOST
Ald. Smith claimed that the city had failed to collect $2,000,000 in trades licences in the past few years because of inequalities and omissions in the trades-licence scale.

"We have the power to deal with it," he maintained. "We can present a bill to the legislature in 1957 if necessary. I still hold we want action on this problem."

He cited instances of large firms and industries paying small licence fees.

"They don't require subordination, especially when it's the homeowners who are subsidizing them," he said. He declared the trades licence setup "antiquated, unsuitable, and unfair to the small business people who are paying their fair share."

Ald. Pinfold said aldermen realized there were inequalities in business licensing. But, he said, the provincial government was examining the whole situation in its current revision of the Municipal Act.

The difficulty of devising equitable taxes had run through the whole history of taxes, he said, and he didn't think a finance committee, without a great deal of expert advice, could devise an equitable scale.

SEEKING FAIR SYSTEM

He thought the provincial government recognized this fact, and was seeking an equitable, uniform system for the province, "as a great boost to B.C."

Ald. Robert Macmillan, however, asserted that Victoria's

He suggested, without gaining formal support, that the city should collect licence fees from now-exempt insurance companies as a start, and should ask the legislature to amend the city's private act to allow higher maximum fees.

New Plan Approved

City Tries Again On Fuel Problem

A new plan to alleviate the fuel-wood shortage in Victoria with bush-wood at a price within reason was endorsed by city council yesterday.

Aldermen M. H. Mooney and J. Donald Smith were appointed to supervise the plan without involving the city in any expense.

Ald. Smith told council that several logging companies, owners of a large acreage of logged-off property, were willing to allow waste wood to be taken from the property free of charge if the city would supervise the cutting.

The president of the IWA had assured him that there were unemployed skilled loggers who would be available to cut the wood, and dealers had confirmed that there would be trucks available and that they would be glad to handle the wood.

"The wood could be supplied to people who really need it, at a price not to exceed, I believe, $13 a cord," Ald. Smith said.

Franchise Forfeit Demanded

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Union Steamships' franchise to serve Bowen Island should be cancelled, says a Vancouver member of the Legislature.

Arthur Turner, CCF member for Vancouver East, said yesterday that Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi has full power to declare the licence forfeit.

In an open letter to Gagliardi, he said cancellation of the franchise would be "a wise decision and in the public interest."

"Bowen Island is the only place in B.C. where the population has not increased in the past 10 years," the letter said. "Families have been leaving the island and the school is suffering from a shortage of pupils."

"This condition has been brought about through a lack of cheap and efficient year-round transportation," Mr. Turner wrote.

Ex-Cayuga Crewman Held in $14,522 Theft

An RCMP officer left here for Eastern Canada yesterday, to bring back an ex-crewman of HMCS Cayuga arrested in connection with the theft of $14,522 from the ship in April, 1955.

AB Robert Thomas Semple, 21, was arrested yesterday in Hamilton, Ont., after intensive investigation which followed arrest, confession and sentence of another rating for the theft in September.

AB Francis J. Cassidy, 24, is now serving an 18-month sentence.

Cassidy said he took the money from an open safe in the supply officer's cabin April 23, 1955. He hid it in several places in the Victoria area and then mailed it to a friend in Port Arthur, he said. Cassidy, a deserter who voluntarily gave himself up, could only account for $2,900 of the money and said the rest was "ratched" in Ontario.

When he went to the hiding place, Cassidy said, he couldn't find the money.

KNEW NOTHING

An RCMP inspector here said he "knew nothing about the money," whether the balance of the stolen loot had been recovered or not.

AB Semple was arrested by RCMP Hamilton detachment following intensive investigation by two officers from the Victoria detachment. Investigation is continuing, a spokesman said.

Only objector was Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who said that "first thing we know we're going to have someone complaining about the seagulls."

Waterfront 'Out' for Courthouse

Suggestion that Victoria's proposed new courthouse should be built on the waterfront between Fort and View will be "closely studied" but almost certainly tossed out by the provincial government. The Daily Colonist learned yesterday.

Still considered the most probable site for the building is the government-owned lot immediately in front of Christ Church Cathedral on Quadra Street.

Mayor Percy Scurrell suggested Wednesday that the province should build the courthouse on the west side of Wharf Street.

where it would beautify the harbor and could have two storeys below street level for storage. This site, he said, could be served by adequate parking facilities.

But high government officials said this idea would probably be thrown out because the site would have to be bought by the provincial government, adding a hefty sum to the estimated construction cost of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

Works Minister W. N. Chant also indicated he was against the suggestion, saying "it would not be sound business sense."

buy property for a courthouse site when the province already owns "just as suitable sites."

Two other locations being considered are the civil service parking lot at Government and Belleville and behind the present courthouse at Langley and Bastion.

Mr. Chant promised early in September that a start on the new building would be made within a year.

He is known to personally favor the cathedral location—property the provincial government owns.

house nearly 20 years ago and holds still.

Final decision as to the location will be made by the provincial cabinet after receiving a recommendation from the 11-man Capital Improvement District Commission, government-appointed body which will look after the beautification and development of the Greater Victoria area.

The courthouse location argument may develop into an internal squabble among members of the commission following Mayor Scurrell's suggestion as to the Wharf Street site.

Apathy Greets Industrialists Eyeing Victoria

Efforts to bring new payrolls to Greater Victoria are stymied by apathy, indecision and procrastination. When interested industry takes a look at possibilities here it finds an absence of suitable sites and lack of co-operation from local governments and services.

These shortcomings were listed by an industrialist, a business editor and a regional planner in a panel discussion on Victoria's desires and needs for new industry at the annual meeting last night of the Chamber of Commerce industrial development committee.

Panel members were Fred Manning of Bapeco Paint, Brahm Wiesman of the Capital Region Planning Board, and Harry Young of The Daily Colonist. Moderator was C. C. Wyatt, city manager.

CLIMATE CREDITED

On the credit side of the industrial ledger were two short items: climate of the region and proximity of employees' residences to places of work.

Mr. Young said it was suggested to him that a university be established in Victoria.

"I believe a small university with a limited number of subjects offered would enhance the economy," he said. "It would be a new activity if not a new industry."

He also suggested luring industrialists and business houses to Victoria as a site for head offices. There is not a single insurance firm headquartered west of the Rockies.

He urged setting up a strong producers' association to push products under the label "Vancouver Island."

Chief complaint heard from prospective new industrialists is that "city hall wasn't doing enough or that it was actually deterring industry," Mr. Young said.

He was told that city hall seemed "more willing to tell you what you couldn't do rather than what you could do."

Mr. Manning attributed the "too little—too late" programs of the city and chamber in attracting industry to the apathy of the population, indecision and procrastination on the part of those capable of working out a program.

Planner Brahm Wiesman said there was extremely little suitable industrial land left within Greater Victoria, none at all in the Inner Harbor industrial reserve.

He suggested that sites be put aside for future industrial reference in suitable, flat, accessible areas beyond the residentially developed regions in Saanich.

U.S., Canada Work Out Salmon Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian and United States negotiators agreed Thursday to regulate the Pacific coast pink—salmon industry through the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission.

The authority of the commission, established 20 years ago to regulate sockeye-salmon fishing on British Columbia's Fraser River, would be expanded to cover the pink-salmon industry, worth $15,000,000 annually to Canada. Each country now appoints three members to the commission.

TO BE RATIFIED

Following four days of negotiation negotiators issued a statement outlining points of agreement to go into force on ratification by the two governments.

Orlov Says:

Island Beats World

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian Minister of Lumber Industries G. M. Orlov arrived in Ottawa by plane Thursday night from a tour of the West Coast and Northern Ontario and said he now knows why Canada is the world's top pulp and paper producer.

The Russian minister told reporters he was most impressed with pulp and paper operations he had seen at Kapuskasing, Ont., and on the west coast.

On Vancouver Island he had seen an operation that probably was the best in the world.

He said it was hoped that contracts would be signed shortly for Soviet purchase of earth-moving machinery, saw-mill machinery and bulldozers from three west coast firms. He did not disclose the value of the contracts.

Emporium or City Hall?

REMINISCENT of the Ark on Mt. Ararat which continually is being "discovered" in a different place, Victoria's projected new city hall seems to be jumping around a lot. Ten days ago there was serious discussion in the city council as to whether it should be built as a joint effort with Saanich at Topaz Avenue or near the top of Hillside Avenue. Three days later there was its sudden move to the brickfields on Douglas Street. Now, for the moment at any rate, the much-talked-of design is back again on its own grounds; only this time, seven stories high and with a row of retail stores as its foundation.

While it is confusing to have even a projected city hall jumping around in this fashion, there is one question we would like to ask now: is it an emporium or a city hall that is needed, by the City alone or by the City in conjunction with Saanich? What have retail outlets to do with a city hall; or has the City begun to think of its services in terms of merchandising? Surely Victoria can afford an administration building without thus departmentalizing the business. It is true that the corporation could sell licences, ash cans, perhaps even property and some other things in the role of a vendor; but there are definite limits to what it has to vend. Its role primarily is that of collection, and no street display is needed for that.

Like the Ark on a wandering Ararat, the proposed site for a new city hall must come to rest somewhere, some day. We hope that when that time arrives the drawings will provide for a city administration centre, and not six-sevenths of a department store or any kindred purpose.

Not to embarrass the city council but because we wish to know, where would Victoria do its civic business while builders erected seven stories on the present city hall site 18 months and possibly $1,500,000 later?

Of Consistently Poor Design

THE recent "Fire Prevention Week" postage stamp is a reminder that the postal department is none too successful in the special stamps it issues, or in some of the regular issues either. Few of them are impressive of design or of a nature likely to cause particular pride. It may be difficult to satisfy the artistic desires of a philatelist but even a layman, comparing Canadian stamps with those of some other countries, is compelled to admit that ours take second place.

One remembers the queer image that first supposedly represented the Queen. It was speedily withdrawn after the blame had been laid at the door of the photographer, but it was a mystery how it ever was passed for printing at all. The animal series did in some instances reflect reality and pleasing design but at best it was uneven in quality. There seems to be a continuing lack of first-rate ideas and execution, and this is strange because there should be no dearth of experienced counsel available to provide inspiration or artists to carry the work out.

The fire prevention stamp is a particularly poor effort and certainly not one calculated to further the cause it seeks to promote. The design itself could easily be mistaken for a Halloween mask instead of a burning house, and it neither arrests attention nor pleases the eye. It has all the earmarks in fact of a symbol hurriedly planned on the basis that anything would do. Nor did its appearance on the heels of Fire Prevention Week instead of well in advance of it do anything to stimulate interest in the safety campaign.

Something is badly wanting at postal headquarters where new stamps are concerned. There is obvious need for a standing committee of competent artists and designers whose advice could be sought when an issue is contemplated. A stamp goes round the world and is an advertisement of a nation; it therefore deserves much more than perfunctory production. As they stand now few Canadian stamps do the postal department much credit.

Unequal Punishment

APPARENT inequality of punishment imposed in the Duncan police court on a "white" man and an Indian youth leaves an unpleasant taste in the mouth. From comparison of the offences charged against the two, and of the sentences passed by Magistrate A. C. Sutton, it is difficult to erase a suspicion that the Indian was dealt with more severely than he deserved in the circumstances of a somewhat sordid incident, or else that the white man was treated leniently.

The facts as related to the magistrate are that the man supplied the young Indian—little more than a boy—with whisky and arranged with him to find him a girl in the Indian reserve. The Indian lad returned with two girls; his own friend and another. The white man, however, preferred the Indian's companion and tried to take her away; whereupon the young Indian became enraged and hit him with a board. Up to that point the Indian's action might appear to be excusable, if not precisely legal; but then he went farther and took the white man's wallet. For this he was charged with robbery and violence and sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Oakalla.

Robbery with violence, of course, is a serious offence. So also is supplying hard liquor to Indians or minors, but this white man who gave liquor to someone who was both an Indian and a minor was discharged with a fine of $50. From the evidence in this case, and taking account of the age of the Indian and the provocation he received, it may be surmised that the actions of the white man were the cause of the trouble. But the Indian boy goes to a prison farm for six months while the white man pays a fine and goes free.

One Dispute Less

IN a world which seems never to run short of disputes, perhaps the settlement of the Russo-Japanese peace treaty after 11 years may pass relatively unnoticed as it has done this week. Restoration of diplomatic relations between Tokyo and Moscow however does settle a troublesome issue in the Far East, the future of two small islands off the coast of North Hokkaido. It was because of disagreement over Habomai and Shikotan, the islets in question, that Soviet Russia refused to sign the treaty restoring formal peace with Japan after the close of the Second World War.

Interpreting the News

Molotov's Star Is Rising

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

THE Polish revolt against Soviet Russian domination has put "old Bolshevik" Vyacheslav M. Molotov in a very nice spot. Every time anybody in the Soviet inner leadership mentions Poland, Molotov is in position to say: "I told you so."

Whether Molotov will be able to capitalize on his position at the expense of Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin—and whether he wants to—remains to be seen. But certainly, from the Bolshevik viewpoint, Molotov has been right about the danger of "Titoism" ever since President Tito of Yugoslavia broke with Stalin in 1948.

Molotov fully shared Stalin's hatred of Tito for rebelling against Soviet dictatorship over the East European satellite countries.

Molotov was thrown out of his post of foreign minister to make it easier for Khrushchev and Bulganin to make friends with Tito again.

It can hardly be doubted that the Polish rebellion—and the prospective rebellion in Hungary—will strengthen Molotov in the Soviet Communist party's presidium which rules Russia. There is talk now that Khrushchev might be ousted from his job as first secretary of the Communist party. If he went, Bulganin might go with him.

In that event, Molotov might or might not get either the prime ministry or the Communist party leadership if he wanted them.

It is quite possible that, at 66, he does not want either post and would prefer to remain a vice-premier and top policy maker.

Molotov's present position of strength emphasizes his durability in the tough game of Communist power politics.

He is a comeback artist of note. He was premier from 1930 to 1941, when Stalin took over that job to direct war policy. For a while, from 1939 to 1941, he was foreign minister as well. He continued in the foreign ministry until 1949. Then he was "demoted" but remained one of Russia's several vice-premiers. It turned out that Molotov really was detached from any active cabinet post to take charge of Soviet Far Eastern policy.

After Stalin's death in 1953, Molotov was called back to the foreign ministry. His loss of that position last June certainly was a demotion—a slap in the face for Tito's benefit.

Now, it is apparent even in Moscow that Molotov was right all along in his warnings against Titoism. What is surprising is that Khrushchev and Bulganin thought they could relax the Soviet grip on the satellite countries without asking for trouble. In Poland especially, hatred of Russia—not merely of Communism—is inbred.

One of Molotov's strengths is that he has been around a lot for years, attending international conferences. He has seen something of the world. Khrushchev and Bulganin have been going around for the last couple of years. But their background is almost incredibly narrow.

"There's going to be some protest marches about 'bull' around here, too, before long."

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

TIME magazine writers are apt to be expressionists to whom dull writing is anathema. For instance there is this vivid sentence from a current review of Alan Moorehead's "Gallipoli":

"His account of this last great battle or Constantinople . . . gleams like a ribbon on khaki." That is exquisite, as a phrase.

The weakness of redomestication is that substance is apt to be side-tracked for colorful imagery. The landing at Gallipoli was not a battle for Constantinople any more than the Normandy landing was a battle for Berlin; not as much as a matter of fact.

Elsewhere the reviewer's love of words has led him astray. For example:

"The British feel an emotional attachment to gallant defeats and desperate defenses that no mere victory can rival . . ."

Perhaps this is because they have won so many battles victory grows stale.

Thus the Gallipoli campaign of the First World War has always ranked high in British hearts, along with the Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava, the evacuation of Dunkirk and the siege of Tobruk.

The Light Brigade's charge was neither a defeat, a defence, nor desperate. It was a successful offence; foolish perhaps but carried out with gay abandon. Tobruk was not breached and its back door was always open.

"The operations commander, Sir Ian Hamilton, 'one of the long tradition of British poet-generals,' spoke to his men of Hector and Achilles."

Moorehead is to blame for this but the Time reviewer improves on him. British generals have been singularly unpoetic. Wavell toyed with poetry but Montgomery was blunt and incisive to an untidy degree. Wellington, Wolsley, Roberts, Kitchener and Haig would not have felt complimented by such a classification.

And Hamilton, alas, never spoke to his men, to many of whom he was scarcely even a name. Moorehead himself tells the reviewer this, when on page 235 he points out that Hamilton was a vague and remote figure whom few soldiers ever saw.

"His chief of staff shaved each day before battle with Kipling's 'I propped up beside his mirror.'"

Not in Moorehead's book he doesn't, wherein he gets scant attention.

"Rupert Brooke . . . dreamed crusader's dreams of Christian soldiers in the mosque of St. Sophia."

Brooke was a literary by-product of no bearing whatsoever on the Gallipoli campaign.

"Evacuation, once ordered, threatened to be more harrowing even than the landing. But this is an art at which the British are masters."

An unfortunate inuendo. Britain's retreats invariably came because they so often bore the brunt of the world's troubles.

"The book is the best account ever written of the action that started on March 18, 1915."

To get the "feel" of Gallipoli the Time reviewer should read John Massfield's version.

For all of the above, however, the reviewer makes amends when he writes ". . . comes the authentic voice of men in battle, so that after 41 years the reader's heart still catches."

And if his picturesque prose leads people to read the Moorehead book his redomestication may be forgiven.

International Commentary

Revolt Among the Satellites

By W. N. EWER, from London

WLADISLAW Gomulka is back in power in Poland; Imre Nagy has been restored to power in Hungary. Both, after holding high office in the government and the party, had been disgraced and expelled as "deviationists." Gomulka had been arrested, though not tried, on even more serious charges.

It is an event without precedent in the Communist story. High-rank Communists have been demoted and then restored to favor. Dead men have been "rehabilitated" and found innocent of the "crime" for which they had been executed. There is a current bitter jest in Hungary where Rakj, hanged as a traitor, has just been reburied in a "tomb of honor."

"Christians believe in resurrection after death." But never before have the leaders of the OP rank come back to leadership after such complete disgrace.

The reason is as unique as the event.

There is no question that both the return of Gomulka and the return of Nagy are a result not of "orders from Moscow" but of popular, and especially of working class, demand for their recall.

That is the real importance of it.

It would be wrong to over-assess its significance. Both Gomulka and Nagy are convinced Communists. Gomulka was a militant of the underground Polish Communist Party in Pilsudski's time. Nagy, peasant-born, joined the Red army in 1918 when a prisoner-of-war, and fought during the civil war. Both, like Tito, consider themselves orthodox Leninists and Soviet leaders as having been guilty of "deviations."

Nagy, during his short premiership, was an exponent of a "liberal" though still Communist policy. Gomulka, when vice-premier and secretary general of the party, was regarded as anything but "liberal." Yet he is today as popular in Poland as Nagy is in Hungary. For the reason of their popularity in both cases is that Gomulka and Nagy are looked on as staunch opponents of Russian domination and staunch upholders of their country's right to independence.

For the Communists and the Socialists this means the right to choose their own "roads to socialism." For others it may mean more than this. But there is unity in detesting and resenting Russian control. It is no coincidence that this feeling has come first to a head in two satellite countries which have a long and proud tradition of revolutionary nationalism. Marx, who had nothing but scorn for other "tribes" (Slav or Rumanian) of eastern Europe, was an ardent champion of Polish and Hungarian nationalism.

This upsurge of national feeling in two of the most important satellites cannot be relished by Soviet leaders. Their first reaction was to try to check it. After the Poznan riots, Bulganin went himself to Poland to insist half-menacingly, half-appealingly, that there must be no relaxation of "solidarity" of the Communist countries under the pretext of national differences. Khrushchev sent a circular letter to the non-Soviet Communist parties giving them a similar warning.

The only effect seems to have been to arouse annoyance at interference—especially in Yugoslavia when Tito came to hear of it, and of Khrushchev's implied advice to the parties not to think too favorably of Yugoslav policies and ideology. It is open to doubt whether the efforts to placate and reassure Tito during his Crimean "holiday" were by any means entirely successful.

So the Soviet leaders changed their tactics. They saw that the policy of trying to "put the brakes on" had a double danger. It would increase instead of check the Polish and Hungarian resentment of Russian control. It might lead to a new quarrel with Tito. And Moscow cannot afford that. The Yugoslav president has become too popular a figure both among Communists and in "un-committed countries." A fresh break with him would be seen everywhere as a sign of reversion to "Stalinism."

Any obvious attempt to repress national movements would show too clearly that Soviet Russia, despite all protestations since Stalin's death, is still an imperialist power.

The brakes have been taken off or only applied gently and unobtrusively. The restoration of Gomulka, however distasteful, is being allowed. The restoration of Nagy, however distasteful, is being allowed. "Loyal" Hilary Minc is dismissed without an effort to save him. "Loyal" Mathias Rakosi is dismissed and exiled from Hungary without an effort to save him; except that apparently he is being received for a second time in his career as a political refugee in the Soviet Union. But the Communists have to be prepared to be sacrificed to the exigencies of Soviet policy.

Will the process continue? Will the Soviet leaders continue to tolerate (at least in appearance) further developments which are likely to come in Poland, in Hungary and possibly in other of the satellites? Or will they decide that whatever the risks involved, they must put a stop to so dangerous an evolution? That is impossible to forecast. But it is a question which must be subject to much worried thinking in the Kremlin.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IT IS a wonder more of us have not thought of putting Halloween to more hallowed uses than the somewhat aimless evening wanderings of little children, the conclusion of which is a tummy ache, a collection of cheap candy expressly made for the occasion, some dubious apples and a great weariness. It is true some parents stage parties; but this is not as common as it once was. Yet the eve of All Saints Day might, in view of the state of the world today, be very imaginatively employed. And UNICEF, which is the handy abbreviation for the United Nations Children's Fund, the world's largest inter-governmental organization concerned solely with childhood, has found the way.

Last year was the fifth year the "shell-out for UNICEF" campaign has been in operation in the United States, and on Halloween last year the children of the United States took $600,000 cash, roving the streets of their home cities and towns and calling "shell-out" for the millions of children all over the world, in Africa, Asia, South America, for whom there are no such festive traditions as Halloween, and no bright homes upon which to call in the name of all the saints.

This will be the second Halloween in Canada for the UNICEF shell-out, and in many cities and towns the children will be carrying collection boxes for UNICEF instead of the familiar baskets and paper bags in which to collect their usually pathetic take.

The Toronto office of UNICEF at 113 St. George Street, supplies the pamphlets and card badges the children carry to identify themselves, and each city or town has to provide its own collection boxes and its local committee to set up the collection. There is something still magical about Halloween, for so far in each city where the idea has taken root there have popped up most generous conspirators to help with the provision of boxes. For instance, in Toronto a packing house has donated 20,000 tin cans for collecting. The CBC caught hold last year and gave invaluable publicity to the shell-out.

And what a wonderful thing it would be if Halloween could still be the mystical, frenzied, masked and costumed revel of old, instead of candles and apples for a prize, the rescue of childhood from disease, poverty and war in the really dark places of the earth could be its meaning to us all.

Lord's Day Act Absurdity

(From The St. Thomas Times-Journal)

CIRCUMSTANCES forced the Toronto Symphony Orchestra to cease giving performances on Friday evenings, and the experiment is being tried of giving them on Sunday, commencing on Oct. 21. But unless the citizens of Toronto voluntarily and generously dip into their pockets to enter Massey Hall, the new series will be a complete failure. For, according to the Lord's Day Act, no money may be paid to hear music on Sundays.

Not long ago a noted Toronto pianist had to abandon the project of giving a recital at the Conservatory of Music because it was proposed to sell tickets of admission. It was the Lord's Day Alliance, a provincial ministerial body, that stopped the piano recital, and, to be consistent, as well as be true to its principles, the Alliance will invoke the act so that only those who put a freewill offering in the plate will contribute to the financial costs of the symphony orchestra's concert.

In fact, people can go to Massey Hall and listen free, as there is no legal obligation upon them to give anything at all. Actual contributions could be anything from a nickel to whatever sum a music lover feels it would be worth.

But . . . anyone can pay to see a ball game, a football match or a hockey game on Sundays, and yell their heads off to the annoyance of people living in the district.

If the Alliance blocks this worthy cultural project, it will do much to destroy what public support it now has.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

Letters to the Editor

B.C. Exhibition

Your London correspondent's suggestion is one of the soundest I have seen for some time. This idea, if properly followed up, can achieve important results for our province and for Britain.

The impact of such an exhibition could easily be extended beyond London to neighboring countries in Europe where knowledge of our province is also at a low ebb. Provision might be made at the same time for some of the documentation to be printed in one or two languages other than English so as to bring British Columbia to Europe, too. There are always countless numbers of European visitors in London whose interest could be stimulated.

Whilst on the subject of stimulating interest in British Columbia, it seems to me that there are two separate sides to the question. Firstly, we must attract capital investment and secondly (and no less important), we must attract people. We already have many adequate agencies, official and otherwise, for bringing the word about possibilities in this province to the United Kingdom business world. Attraction of people, however, is far less well organized. A much wider dissemination of data about this province is needed if we are to reach the type of person we need.

Looking at the map of British Columbia, one can foresee a possible rapid development along the route of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. The people required for such country are not found in the great European or English cities. We would be unwise to place urban dwellers here in a country of wide open spaces and small, essentially rural, settlements. If Britain is unable to provide immigrants of a rural type then we should turn to Holland, Belgium, Denmark and France, also to the other Scandinavian countries.

To bring British Columbia to the rural workers of Europe I suggest equipping a mobile propaganda unit consisting of a truck or truck with trailer. The unit would be fully equipped to deal with enquiries about this province, would give out foreign language documentation and would be in charge of B.C. residents able to speak at least two European languages, besides English. Properly handled, such a unit could impart information about this province to a far greater number of the right type of people than any existing method.

One cannot help feeling that the problem of populating and opening up this province is too urgent to ignore any longer and that active provincial measures should be taken now to seek out our requirements of capital and man-power at source.

Salt Water Pool

Wake up, Victoria, and demand the continuance of our unique warm salt water crystal pool. The renewed pipe from the sea should be included in the beautification of Victoria, capital city of B.C.

And with the subject of pipes, do not miss the chance of sewage mains leading into a fertilizer plant along with all garbage. Let it not be reported once again that our beaches get most of it. Montreal and environs have permanently defiled the whole of Lake St. Louis — no swimming at all.

Quebec Man Hanged After 13 Reprieves

MONTREAL (CP)—Blacksmith Ovila Boucher, 37, was hanged early today for the axe murder of an elderly neighbor more than five years ago.

He mounted the gallows at 12:25 a.m. and was pronounced dead 11 minutes later by a panel of six doctors. The execution ended a series of trials and appeals considered unique in Canada.

Paul Huet, sheriff of Bordeaux jail, said Boucher mounted the gallows calmly and made no statement.

FOUR TIMES

The case went to the lower courts four times, to the Quebec Court of Appeals three times and twice to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Through the series of trials and appeals, Boucher was allowed 13 stays of execution. Almost five years ago the day—Oct. 24, 1951—Boucher was first convicted of murdering George Jarjour, 77-year-old Syrian merchant's hanged body was found June 3, 1951, in an apartment above his store.

Province Wants Liquor

Four Manitoba Cities 'Wet', Little Doubt in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (BUP)—Four of Manitoba's five cities have gone "wet" and the fifth—Winnipeg—was expected to announce approval of five new liquor outlets today.

Enumerators began counting the ballots yesterday from Wednesday's liquor referendum and an official said he expected the result would be announced some time today.

There was no official indication of how the Winnipeg vote went, but a returning officer dropped a hint.

"The voting has been very much like the weather," he said. It was raining at the time.

St. Boniface, Brandon, Portage La Prairie and St. James

all approved the five new outlets in voting last Friday and Wednesday. Twenty-seven towns, villages and rural municipalities also went "wet" with only 12 voting to retain the present law which permits only beer parlors for men.

Officials had delayed the count so as not to influence voting Wednesday in Winnipeg and some suburbs.

Seven districts in the Winnipeg area approved the new outlets with other suburbs still counting votes.

The Manitoba Liquor Commission, cocktail bars and mission was expected to begin cabarets and mixed beer par- accepting applications for li- l-ors shortly. However, no li- cences for beer and wine in cences will be granted before restaurants and liquor in out- March 1.

William Macready chalks up two benefits from progress

High school teacher William Macready speaks with authority about progress in the vitally important field of education.

"Today's improved schools," says Mr. Macready, "are the result of years of planning, research and experiment. Modern buildings and equipment make for more effective instruction. New teaching methods help students develop new skills and extra-curricular interests. Today, the teacher's task is more gratifying than ever."

In another field, men like William Macready also benefit from progress in a way vitally important to their families... life insurance. Family men are making greater use of its services than ever before. In proportion to the national income, Canadians own more life insurance than any other people in the world.

Today, life insurance representatives are better trained to help you. Group insurance has brought new security to millions. And many restrictions on obtaining life insurance have been removed. In these and other ways, the life insurance companies keep pace with the march of progress.

Colt Has Big Chance to Repay Debt

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—A horse who was almost sold for the song he was named after is conceding a good chance of winning the richest purse in thoroughbred racing history Saturday.

He's Federal Hill, a Kentucky-bred colt, named after the "home" in the song, "My Old Kentucky Home." This son of Comic Bomb-Aerial Beauty is one of 17 of the finest two-year-olds in the United States expected to march postward for the $175,210 Garden State Stakes at Garden State Park. First money is $175,210.

Should Federal Hill thrust his nose across the finish line first in this fourth annual mile and a sixteenth test for two-year-olds, he'd certainly qualify for a rags-to-riches yarn.

Clifford Lussky, Kentucky paint manufacturer, who owns Federal Hill, admits that he once thought very little of the colt he recently named as an entry at the supplementary entry cost of $10,000.

Federal Hill's first trip to the post was in a $7,000 claiming event last June 4. He finished third.

Since then Federal Hill has started 10 times and finished in the money on eight occasions, six times a winner. He has earned $50,475.

The star-studded field is expected to include Wheatley stable's Bold Ruler; G. D. Widener's Amarullah; Bohemia stabies' Ambebeaving; Harbizon, running as an entry with Iron

Liege also owned by Calumet Farms; Liascolen Farm's entry Blue Prince and Nashville, Mrs. Ada L. Rice's entry of Buddy and Take Note; Rex C. Ellis' worth's California Kid; Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Clem; Woodlawn Farm's High Sparkle; F. J. Nally's Melson; C. V. Whitney's Mamelet; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kratz's Prince of Peace and P. A. B. Widener's Tranquil.

"You can say that again," said the second photographer. "I get the same thrill out of Paarl South African Sherry as I get out of buying my first Rolleiflex."

"A good comparison! They're both the finest in their class, and they're both imported."

"But Paarl isn't expensive! In fact, it doesn't cost any more than the wine you've been buying."

New Rear Axles. GMC's wider-than-ever range of Hypoid rear axles makes it easy to find just what you need—custom-created to fit your job.

Five Sturdy Standard Transmissions. Now, for 1957, GMC brings you everything that's new in standard transmissions. Truckers everywhere know the reliability of famous 3-speed Synchromesh, the Heavy Duty Synchromesh and the 4-speed H.D. But GMC also has two new 5-speed units . . . the New Process transmission for medium-duty work, and a real workhorse—the all-new Spicer 5-speed Heavy Duty truck transmission.

Threaded Spring Shackles. Easier-to-service suspension points up GMC's eye on the future for truckers. Spring shackles are now threaded for easy removal and replacement.

Meet Drakes Tonight

Tars Lose Players For Playoff Opener

Coach Frank Hindle of Navy will send a "crocked up" club against Oak Bay Drakes in the first game of the two-game, total-point Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League playoff tonight, but he isn't conceding anything to anyone just yet.

We've lost three first strings, Hindle stated last night. "But I still feel sure we'll give them a pretty big handful tonight. We're not overconfident but we're certainly not pessimistic either."

The three first strings that will not play tonight form a great part of Navy's attacking punch. Fullback Ron Gibson was out of the field in the game against Vampires Tuesday, with both shoulder injuries and will probably be out for the rest of the season.

"SHOTS" DON'T AGREE Standout end Ron Young is also out with a bad shoulder and the Roy Roussac is still suffering from the after-effects of some "shots" administered by Navy medical assistants.

Loss of linebacker Fred Hindle to do some coaching in the back field. Starting tonight will be Charlie Thomas at quarterback, Bill Schick and Gerry Kneise in the halfback slots and Gerry Porter and Red Lumsden at wing backs. At fullback, Bud Brown will lead Thomas in protection, play some half back and strongman defense.

Among the line backs are Joe Paul (Boomer-Boomer) and Bud Durr (Boomer-Boomer) and Ed Gibson and Mike Wilson at tackle. Ed Gibson and Mike Wilson are the "shots" administered by Navy medical assistants.

Gorge Vale Pair Defend Buttons Johnny Merriman and Joe Pryke will make their second defense of the buttons open and buttons today at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

The Gorge Vale pair will take on the Norms Norms and John Carlow in an 18-hole match starting at 12:30 p.m.

Ruling on Seattle Speedboat Reversed

Weeks of bitter wrangling, controversy and confusion officially ended Thursday when the inboard racing commission of the American Power Boat Association reversed the disqualification of Miss Thriftway, the Seattle-based speedboat, in the 1956 Gold Cup race.

By a unanimous 11-0 vote, which followed a lengthy hearing by a special committee, the commission ruled that Miss Thriftway had not fouled a buoy on the seventh lap of the first heat of the Gold Cup race and that the Detroit committee's decision in disqualifying her was annulled.

The commission also voted to uphold the hearing committee's report disqualifying a protest against the disqualification of Miss Thriftway in the final heat of the same race. However, the ultimate result of the 1956 Gold Cup race awaits outcome of court action in Michigan.

QUITS UNDER PRESSURE

Marty Marion, former St. Louis Blues star, who played for the Chicago White Sox to a record 27-10, has quit the team in the American League.

By a unanimous 11-0 vote, which followed a lengthy hearing by a special committee, the commission ruled that Miss Thriftway had not fouled a buoy on the seventh lap of the first heat of the Gold Cup race and that the Detroit committee's decision in disqualifying her was annulled.

Salt De-Icing Ordered

Corrosion Beaten Public Promised

Gleaming cup won by the Victoria branch of the Canadian Life Underwriters Association for highest percentage membership is studied by happy trio. CITY COUNCIL yesterday authorized the city engineer to use salt judiciously when necessary, instead of sand, to de-ice city streets.

"And we do mean judiciously," said Ald. Arthur Dowell, public works committee chairman.

He said he would like the public to know that an inhibitor will be mixed with the salt "which does away with the corrosion that the public is afraid is going to happen."

H. W. Fowler & Sons submitted the lowest of eight bids received by city council yesterday for construction of a new comfort station in Beacon Hill Park. The Fowler bid was $14,863.

Determined opposition in Ald. R. C. Macmillan and Mrs. Lily Watson and to a lesser extent, Ald. Arthur Dowell, failed to defeat a proposal that the city manager be given discretionary power to authorize city employees to take measures in municipal operations and to rebate not more than 50 per cent of enforcement fees on successful completion.

Council also rejected an attempt by Aldermen Geoffrey Edgewood and J. Donald Smith to have Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee study the Saanich proposal that the city give the province a block of its Elk Lake land for a camping site.

Ald. Macmillan said the Saanich proposal was "the most ridiculous suggestion I ever heard of to suggest a camp site in the middle of a city."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood said that as far as the city giving property away, there is also rejection of a proposal that a member of the city council be authorized to take measures to prevent the city from being used as a dumping ground for refuse by the province. The proposal was also rejected.

Retiring Debt

Council rejected the proposal and instead recommended that the money be used toward retiring the debt, and that if voters consent new money be borrowed for the addition under today's terms might more advantageous by changes in the basis of sharing school construction costs.

Victoria Public Library board was authorized to accept a grant of funds toward the addition of an additional 10,000 sq. ft. of space which an estimated cost of $100,000 will be paid by the city.

The city solicitor was instructed to prepare a resolution to the effect that the city should not be bound by the terms of the agreement with the province for the construction of a new library building, but should be free to negotiate a new agreement with the province for the construction of a new library building.

Council voted to ask the Capital Improvement District Commission for extra funds to complete the beautification work it has started along Dallas from Douglas to Cook.

The city has commenced reconstruction and improvement of the Douglas-Dallas corner and has installed curbs and gutters along Dallas and allowed for new parking bays.

Without debate, council agreed to pay over to the Greater Victoria Centennial Commission, the proceeds of the sale of the city's old government buildings, which will be used to help finance the city's 50th birthday celebration.

Fast-Travelling Jet Shoots Itself Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The navy said yesterday this actually happened—a jet fighter plane flew so fast it caught up with its own speeding bullets and shot itself down.

The stranger-than-fiction accident was a "million-to-one shot," a spokesman said, and may never happen again. But as a precaution the navy has

The pilot did not agree with the navy's million-to-one shot odds on the accident.

"At the speed we were flying today, that could be duplicated any time," he said.

The plane, which was the day fighter, was flying over the Pacific Ocean when it crashed.

THOUGHT IT A BIRD
Attridge never knew what hit him—he thought it was a bird that shattered his bullet-proof canopy.

The navy said three shell holes were found in the crashed plane and a cannon ship of the type Attridge was flying was lodged in the jet engine.

This, it said, was proof that Attridge qualifies as a rival to the legendary man who turned around so fast he met himself coming back.

The fastjet crashed on Oct. 22 when the 43-year-old test pilot, a former navy

Westwood Favors Exhibition in U.K.

Trade and Industry Minister Ian C. Westwood yesterday threw his full support behind a suggestion that the B.C. centenary in 1968 be celebrated with a trade exhibition in London.

"It is a very good idea," said Mr. Westwood, "and I think it would be a very good idea to have a trade exhibition in London in 1968."

Mr. Westwood said he had been approached by the British government to see if the B.C. centenary could be celebrated in London in 1968. He said he was in favor of the idea and would be happy to see it through.

Isn't that just like a man? You can be sure this spilled water won't get wiped up till morning. ♦ But take heart, ladies! With Stride—a magnificent new Johnson's Wax—on your floors, a damp cloth whisks away spill spots, even if left for hours!

SPILL ON IT, SPLASH ON IT, PUNISH IT—JUST AN EASY ONCE-OVER RESTORES THE LUSTRE, WITHOUT RE-WAXING!

No wonder the swing is to Johnson's Stride! For in Stride women have found at last a self-polishing wax that actually protects like paste wax. You just spread Stride on it, dries to a rich wax lustre. And from then on, spills wipe up without a trace, even after they've dried. A little buffing erases acid marks.

Your usual damp mopping actually brightens the lustre—brings back Stride's better lustre and again, "re-waxing" is a waste of time. That means fewer of those back-breaking scrubbing sessions. So, stay with Stride—no more scrubbing! Why? Don't you join the swing to Johnson's Stride?

Reds Praise Greene Novel

LONDON (Reuters)—The Russian cultural magazine Soviet Survey, published in London, said Tuesday Graham Greene's novel The Quiet American recently translated into Russian has won high praise from Soviet critics.

The Victoria area and we propose to take no further action."

Hon. Robert Mayhew, acting for Col. F. T. Paine, MP for Victoria, will be asked to follow up the matter with officials in Ottawa.

In a report to finance committee, City Manager C. C. Wyatt noted yesterday that a low census would affect the city adversely both in its provincial per-capita grant and its per-capita debt figures and thus its credit.

The 1956 census indicated the population to be 1,737 persons over the 1951 census total.

A comparison with Oak Bay statistics, Mr. Wyatt said, appeared to justify the opinion that Victoria's population was substantially greater than the figure released by Ottawa.

Greater Victoria Police Go Back to School

Tricks of the fingerprinting trade are demonstrated by Det. David L. Hargrave of the city police force to two of 12 Greater Victoria constables taking basic training classes—three hours a day—from six instructors. City constables Cliff Harrison and Glen Shaff learn the use of powders, sprayers and fingerprint cards. (Colonist photos by Jim Ryan)

There's a right way to do everything, and Det. Napoleon Bouchard makes sure these constables learn the proper way to handle their 38 Smiths. Det. Bouchard is teaching the care and handling of firearms during the five-week training period. Constables are Peter Delaney, Esquimalt, Ed Owens, Saanich, and Richard Laporte of Oak Bay.

This four-day equipment hasn't been used since it was bought three years ago, but deputy chief Harry M. M. is making sure officers know how to handle it. Search constable Ron Carter, left, holds a cartridge for the Federal test gun, accurate up to 100 yards, and city officer Laurie Bellamy looks on. Chief instructor is former B.C. police inspector Richard Harvey, who has been sole instructor for the previous four years, on criminal law and statistics; others are Const. Lyle Samson on juvenile problems, and Sgt. Brooke Douglass on traffic.

All Municipal Council Seats Expected to Be Contested

Contests appeared certain yesterday for all nine municipal council seats open in the annual elections in Saanich, Oak Bay, and Esquimalt in December.

A survey of the three council boards and their 1956-57 sessions indicated that these positions were expected to be contested.

Most incumbents planned to run again, but, in Oak Bay, councillors Patrick Burley and J. W. Mathis indicated they would not seek re-election.

A survey by The Daily Colonist of 10 prospective candidates in the three municipalities showed that 1956-57 sessions indicated that these positions were expected to be contested.

TO TRY AGAIN

In Saanich, five definite candidates, five undecided, five running, and one unopposable for council. For one police commissioner seat, one definite candidate, one definite, one undecided, one not running.

Oak Bay: For three council seats, one definite candidate, five undecided or unopposable, with the two present members and one other unlikely. For one police commissioner seat, one definite candidate, one definite, one undecided, one not running.

Esquimalt: For three council seats, three definite, three undecided or unopposable, with the two present members and one other unlikely. For one police commissioner seat, one definite candidate, one definite, one undecided, one not running.

Still Undecided: In Esquimalt, the council has a number of undecided candidates for council seats. In Oak Bay, the council has a number of undecided candidates for council seats.

The award was made by 18 literary experts of the Swedish Academy of Letters from a field of about 30 candidates. The prize, worth 500 000 prize. The award, richest in literature, was made possible under the will of the late Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite.

Sidney Smith Says:

Too Few Students Addicted to Study

VANCOUVER (CP)—President Sidney Smith of the University of Toronto says Canada's universities haven't recovered from the pinch of the depression.

Also, he told the Vancouver Board of Trade Thursday, not enough students are addicted to study.

"When you employ a university graduate—arts man, scientist or engineer—you are purchasing the services of a person whose education beyond secondary school has cost anything from $2,000 to $50,000," he said.

Canadian universities were asking industry to repay some part of that initial cost.

"We are asking for a great deal of help, but not in order to keep us in a state of affluence. Our administrative costs, averaged for the whole of Canada, are only 5.5 per cent of our expenditures. Our chief concern is professors' salaries, which have risen in some centres, but not in all, and not enough in any."

Dr. Smith said the universities now face the greatest wave of applicants ever.

But they still need students, which he defined as persons engaged in, or addicted to, study. "We are admitting at the present time too many who are not really students—who are not sufficiently engaged in or addicted to study to make the grade in university courses," he said.

Fanatic Slashes Throat

MANILA (UP)—A fanatic Japanese army holdout from the Second World War slashed his throat with a home-made razor soon after he was captured by Philippine troops, the army announced Thursday.

He was one of two stragglers caught in Zamboanga del Sur province in the Southern Philippines who said they believed Japan was still at war with the United States.

Natives said a malaria epidemic in Mindoro Oriental province has thinned the ranks of another group of former Japanese soldiers who believe the war is still in progress.

Earlier reports said 50 former Japanese soldiers refused to leave the isolated mountain area, but natives told a constabulary official that at least 10 have died of malaria.

Fat's in the Fire!

QUEBEC (CP)—Mounting medical attacks on the health value of fats may cause a slow evolution in the deeply-rooted Canadian dairy industry.

For months dairy processors have been wondering what to make of medical charges that fats in food contribute to heart and arterial disease. They looked to the federal government for judgment and direction.

They were bluntly told Thursday by a top federal nutritionist that the age-old emphasis on fats in milk must be changed. Milk has great health values, said Dr. L. B. Pett, chief of the health department's nutrition division, but the value is in the solids, such as skim milk, and not in the fats.

"This is a hard fact for the dairy industry to accept," he said, "but I believe this emphasis on fat content must be changed."

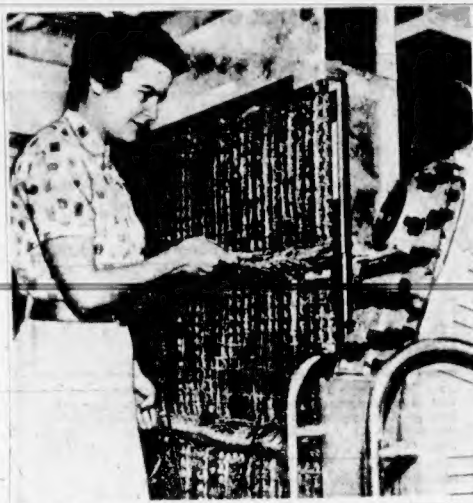

Some dairy processors attending the National Dairy Council convention where Dr. Pett spoke were dismayed. Some considered the change would have little impact on the $1,000,000,000 industry. Others believed it may lead to a slow change in the basic conception of milk production.

Gilbert McMillan of Huntingdon, Que., president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, said farmers have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars during a 40-year period to boost the fat content in dairy herds. Patient breeding during decades was required to increase the fat content in milk by just one per cent.

Mr. McMillan, who speaks for Canada's dairy producers, suggested that if Canadians must reduce their intake of fats for health reasons, they should do so by eating less fat rather than cut down their consumption of dairy products.

Dr. Pett said coronary artery disease is the chief killer in Canada and the United States, both large consumers of fats. The disease was rare in countries where fat consumption was low. The medical evidence had not yet been fully established, but he suspected fat was the culprit.

A $2,000,000 computer that will solve in seconds calculations that would take weeks by mathematicians is being installed in the Confederation Life Association office in Toronto. Company expects it will take five years for machine to pay for itself in better service to clients, lower administrative costs and in solving actuarial problems not now attempted due to high costs.—(CPC)

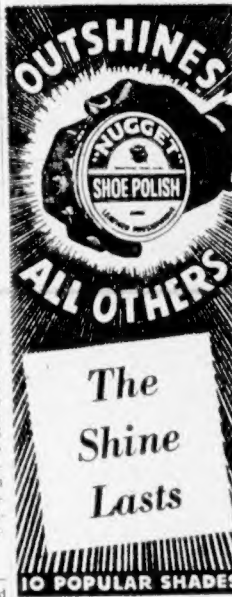

Ran Over Log

Destroyer Propeller Damaged

Repairs will be made at HMC Dockyard to a propeller of HMCS Crescent, bent when the destroyer escort ran over a submerged log while returning from exercises Wednesday night.

The incident happened near Race Rocks when the senior ship in the second Canadian Escort Squadron was returning to Esquimalt Harbor from exercises in Juan de Fuca Strait. The destroyer HMCS Athabaskan has taken the Crescent's place in the anti-submarine training exercises which end at midnight tonight. Training is for officers of the maritime warfare branch of the national defence department.

DONCASTER, England (CP)—Embarrassed women complained to keeper at the zoo in this Yorkshire town that someone was wolf-whistling at them. Keepers investigated. The culprit was a South American parrot.

Money is so fascinating!

WAMPUM Beads made from seashells and strung in belts. Used as currency by the Indians and considered legal tender in the North American colonies until 1670. You can't make whoopees with this stuff any more.

PLAYING CARD MONEY First distributed in Canada in 1658 because of the scarcity of regular currency, but used widely for some 75 years. Ingenious—wasn't it?

LACHINE CANAL RAILWAY TOKENS Tokens used by workmen on the Lachine Canal for third class travel on the Lachine and Montreal Railroad Company.

BONS Abbreviation of "bon pour" or "good for", issued by merchants to meet the need for small change. Widely used in the early 1800's.

P.E.I. HOLEY DOLLAR Originally a large Spanish silver coin in common use in Eastern Canada. Because of the shortage of coin in Prince Edward Island, the centres were punched out—the centres passing for a shilling and the outer rim for $5. Clever, but we doubt if it would work now.

HUDSON'S BAY TOKENS Brass tokens designed in 1854, and used as the unit of currency in the fur trade for many years. One "Made-Beaver" was equal in value to an adult male beaver skin in prime condition.
